

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

Three Kittery Men Upset in Motor Boat in River Late Saturday Evening.

That Thomas Plimpton, a resident of Kittery was not drowned on Saturday evening was due to the efficient work of Philip Hughes and Ernest Jackson, also residents of Kittery. The trio were running home from this city in Jackson's motor boat about 11:30 o'clock Saturday evening, and when within a short distance of the Kittery shore the boat struck an unseen object in the water and was overturned. The occupants were thrown out into the river. Jackson and Hughes being able to swim were able to right the boat and get into it again, but Plimpton being unable to swim and further hampered by a box containing a new suit of clothes which he carried, had a hard time of it and went down. His companions seeing his plight went to his assistance and brought him to the shore where he soon recovered. His suit was lost during the upset. Hughes is employed as a machinist in the navy yard; Jackson is a machinist tendingman and Plimpton is also employed there.

INJURED BY A FALL.

Late Sunday afternoon a sailor from the U. S. S. Montana sustained a fainting spell on Vaughan street and fell in such a manner as to badly cut his chin. He was assisted by Officer Anderson to the office of Dr. J. H. Dixon where his injuries were dressed.

ATTEMPT MADE TO KIDNAP MISS SARAH J. FARMER

Urban J. Ladoux, Inmate at Cowles' Sanitarium, Caught in Act--Was Former Minister at Prague, Austria

A plot to kidnap or cause the release of Miss Sarah J. Farmer, the founder of Greenacre, from the Cowles Sanitarium on Saturday was foiled by one of the nurse attendants who discovered Miss Farmer as she was dressed and ready to depart in company with a very prominent man, an inmate of the institution. This man proved to be Urban J. Ladoux of Hildesford, a great peace advocate and former minister to Prague, Austria, under the Roosevelt administration.

He will be remembered as the man who caused a sensation in New York harbor by jumping from the docks and swimming to the peace steamship Oscar II just as the Ford party were leaving on their mission of bringing the European war to an end.

COURT FAVORS DR. COWLES' PETITION

Justice Pike Orders Miss Marie Shuster to Take Charge of Children Now in Brookline.

On Saturday afternoon Chief Justice Robert M. Pike and Judge John Kivel of the superior court interviewed Miss Marie Shuster, the young German governess selected some time ago in New York by Dr. Edward S. Cowles for his children Harriet and Virginia May, and rejected by Mrs. Florence C. Cowles. The judges ordered that Miss Shuster immediately take charge of the care and education of the children in the same manner and capacity that former governesses had been employed. Miss Shuster, in company with Dr. Cowles and Mrs. Sidney Starr left for Boston Monday to take charge of the children.

TO ENJOIN VERMONT

From Disputing Boundary Line Between N. H. and That State.

Concord, N. H., July 10.—The State of New Hampshire has asked the U. S. supreme court to enjoin Vermont from disputing the sovereignty of New Hampshire over territory east of the west bank of the Connecticut river at highway mark. By king's decree the west bank was established in 1764 as the boundary line between the colonies of New Hampshire and New York. That this line should today be recognized as the boundary between New Hampshire and Vermont is the claim set up in his brief to the supreme court of the U. S. by Asst. Attorney General Joseph Matthews. Vermont seeks to extend her limits east of the river.

NAVAL OFFICIAL WILL INSPECT BIG SUBMARINE

A Naval Constructor Will Determine Whether German Craft is Merchantman or Not

(Special to The Herald) Baltimore, July 10.—Blotting the North Sea fleets of England and France and escaping from a 30-hour chase by British and French warships to the Virginia coast, the "Deutschland," a powerful super-submarine from Germany, steamed through the Virginia Capes at 1:45 Sunday morning and came to anchor in Baltimore harbor. The Deutschland carries about 100 tons of chemicals and dyestuffs, consigned to five New York houses. It was announced. Collector of Customs today formally gave the German super-submarine Deutschland the status of merchantman. Customs inspectors went aboard the vessel to inspect the cargo, principally dyestuffs, was of a nature permitted to be imported to this country. They said they found no munition on board. A report of the search of the vessel was sent immediately to the treasury department at Washington. Collector of Customs Ryan announced that the Baltimore customs officials were notified six weeks ago that the Deutschland was coming here. Formal application papers were made by A. Schumaker & Company for the owners. Collector Ryan said the matter had been "put up to Washington." Papers filed at the customs house here by Captain Koenig, commander of the submarine, stated that the vessel was "engaged in freight service between Bremen, Germany, and U. S. ports." The papers declared that the only guns on board were two very small cannon used only for signal purposes—as carried by merchantmen—and a rack of revolvers. There are no torpedoes carried.

NAVAL CONSTRUCTOR WILL EXAMINE SHIP

Washington, July 10.—A naval constructor acting under the direct orders of the State Department will examine and report on the status of the super-submarine Deutschland now in Baltimore harbor. On his report will depend whether the finding of Collector of the Port of Baltimore W. T. Ryan that the vessel is a merchantman, and subject to the ruling affecting such

2,000 MORE TROOPS LEAVE

Departure of Mass. Recruits From Camp Whitney for Texas Began This Morning.

(Special to The Herald) Camp Whitney, Framingham, Mass., July 10.—Massachusetts sent 2,000 more men to the Mexican border today. They are recruits of the 1st and 2d provisional regiments sent to the border to complete the ranks of the 2d, 5th, 8th and 9th regiments, the cavalry and artillery forces of the Bay State to war strength. The recruits broke camp in a drenching rain and made the three mile trip overland to the Framingham station where the work of enlisting was carried out in good order. The first train of 15 tourist cars got away at 8:40 a. m., forty-five minutes ahead of schedule. The others followed closely.

WILL LIBEL BIG SUBMARINE

Lake Torpedo Boat Co. Alleges Infringement on Patents.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 10.—In an effort to establish the American patents on his type of submarine, Simon Lake, treasurer of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company of this city, said last night that the company would very likely libel the German submarine Deutschland at Baltimore tomorrow. The allegation, it is understood, will be that the construction of the Deutschland involves an infringement of the Lake patents.

MISS BARA APPEARS AS A MEXICAN ADVENTRESS

NEW HAMPSHIRE REGIMENT WILL LEAVE ON TUESDAY

All but Four Companies Have Taken the Federal Oath and Start Will be Made From Camp Tomorrow

The date has been set for the departure of the 1st regiment New Hampshire National Guard, for the front, and they will leave for Laredo, Texas, from the concentration camp at Concord, tomorrow. All but four of the companies, those from Nashua and Keene, have been mustered into the Federal Service, and it is expected that those companies will be ready for the ceremony today. Captain George W. Stewart, U. S. A., will leave Concord for this city immediately after the troops have been sworn into the Federal Service and will take up his duties as examination officer for further recruiting at Fort Constitution.

Lieut. Arthur J. Cagle of Co. E, Concord, has been detached from the regiment by the War Department and ordered to join the Aviation Corps of the Regular Army, for which work he was studying at Newport News when the call was issued for the National Guard.

A few men are still needed to bring the regiment up to proper strength, after which it will be mustered into the service. This will complete the preparations for the trip to the south.

The men put in a hard day Saturday and are fast rounding into shape for duty among the regulars, and when the time comes this state will without a doubt, give a good account of itself, the soldiers leaving here all being in every way physically fit and able to stand real hard work.

All day long the field was filled with men going through the different drills, the extended order and bayonet drills figuring chiefly in the maneuvers today. Major Cole billed two companies a few miles in the morning toward Manchester and gave his men much drilling on the way.

Loading Supplies

Regimental Quartermaster, Capt. Nell Lymann has been kept busy the past two days superintending the loading of the supplies of the troops in the waiting trains. In the railroad yard, all the wagons are now in the cars and the new pyramidal tents, enough to cover every man from New Hampshire with water-tight shelter, have been packed into the trains. Now other supplies are being brought from the state arsenal as fast as the automobile trucks can carry them.

More recruiting details were sent out and even after the infantrymen depart there will still be something to do in securing recruits and training them to be in readiness to follow their comrades to the border, and just as soon as they are able they will be on their way to join those that are first out.

The intense heat Saturday kept the large number of daily visitors from the camp but Sunday being probably the last Sunday the troops will pass in Concord, a large number arrived.

Infantry Will Move First

Unless the orders are changed, the infantry will be the first to move, which includes the sanitary corps and machine gun company and the second detachment will include the battery, cavalry, signal corps and the field hospital.

In the latter unit the arrival of their paraphernalia has caused a new feeling among the men. Before tomorrow night it is expected that the whole equipment, valued at $25,000, will have been delivered and the real work of training the corps will be commenced.

Nearly 60 men have already enlisted in this branch of the service and as the maximum is 67, Captain Knowlton says he is confident that the whole number will be under canvas the first of the week.

Boy Scouts in Camp

Chief "Him" Housa is responsible for the bald heads in this corps, having set the fact, and now many of the men have followed suit, wishing to be prepared when the call comes to entertain for the south.

Under the direction of Scout Master Richard H. Durrell, the Boy Scouts from Pittsfield arrived at Camp Sandling Saturday and set up their tents for a short stay. There were 14 in the troop that arrived and more are expected.

Their first move was to erect their tents and establish their quarters. The boys worked hard in doing this and the small settlement attracted considerable attention from the officers of the camp, each calling in turn and paying their respects to the boys.

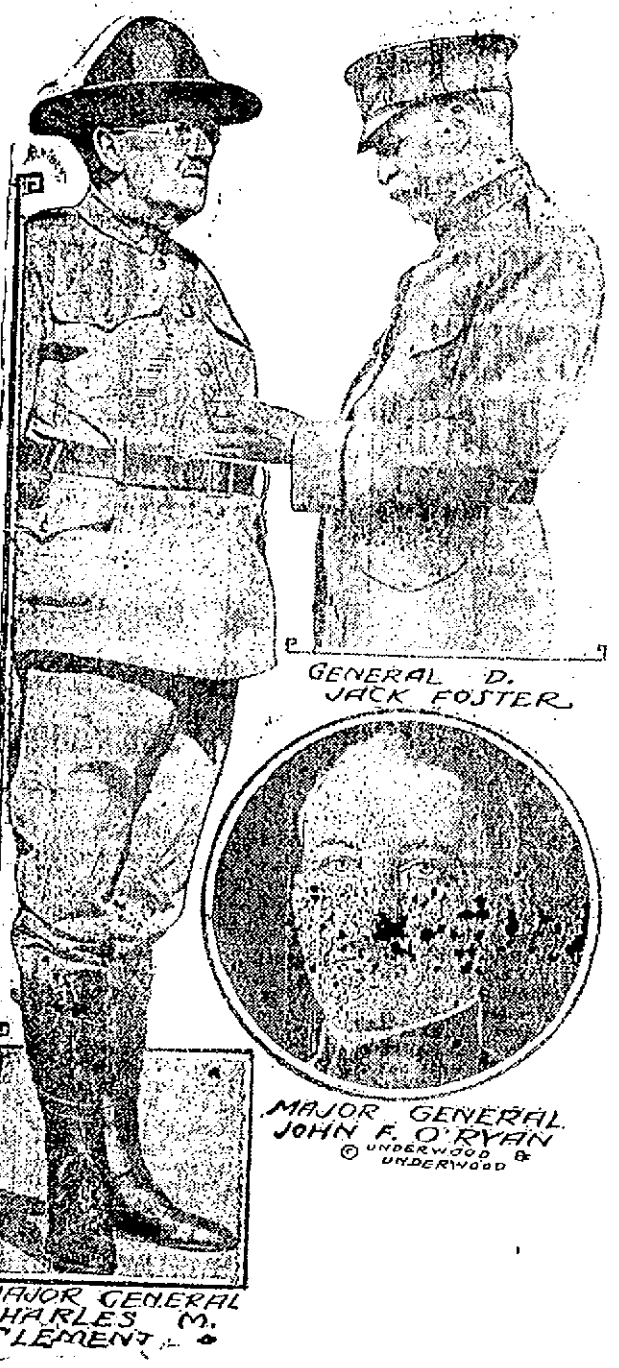

Well Equipped Camp

The scout camp includes 10 pup tents and three wall tents besides the kitchen outfit. The headquarters were established in the middle of the row and in regular fashion the scout dug and the American flag were placed in front of the tent.

The outfit carried by the Pittsfield boys is most complete, and even includes a Red Cross tent, where there are kept first aid kits and beds in case of sickness. An ambulance also stands at the door of the hospital tent.

The boys made the trip to the camp on foot and their wagons were drawn

INDIANA REPUBLICANS EARLY ON THE JOB

Indianapolis, Ind., July 10.—As usual, the campaign has opened early in Indiana. The Republicans have started the first publicity campaign, using street car ads to command the attention of voters.

"Do your duty as a citizen; become interested in politics," is the heading of a placard which appears over the name of the Republican state committee and states the strap-hanger in the face.

GOLF WAR STARTED BY U. S. G. A.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION HITS AT MASSACHUSETTS CLUBS WHO STAND BY QUIMET

New York, July 3.—Despite recent statements of disgruntled golf clubs, backed up by legal opinion, it is apparent that the executive committee of the United States Golf Association has no notion of receding from its stand taken on the amateur situation, as may be seen by a statement issued today from the secretary's office.

It is not difficult to surmise that the U. S. G. A. gunners are aiming at a target up in Massachusetts, where rumors of war have persisted ever since the golf wonder, Francis Ouimet, was ruled out of amateur competition by the powers that be, for opening and running a sporting goods store there in defiance of the official mandate.

Barred from amateur competition in addition to Ouimet, were Paul Tewksbury and J. H. Sullivan Jr., but, notwithstanding this, these two players have been allowed to play, have even been welcomed to compete in club tournaments in Massachusetts, the Woodland Golf Club, to which all three players belong, taking the lead in defying the National body.

Within the last few weeks Frank L. Woodward, president of the National Association, has been in the east talking matters over with the other members of the executive committee. Final consideration of the questions at issue was given at a meeting held during National open championship week at Minneapolis, and from a letter which is now being mailed to all United States Golf Association clubs it is evident that it was decided then not to tolerate any high-handed work on the part of sympathizers of the disgruntled Massachusetts players.

Hereafter clubs that allow to compete in amateur tournaments players who have forfeited their amateur status may find themselves in a mix-up to the extent of having the entries of their members in United States Golf Association tournaments rejected.

FIFTEEN CANDIDATES ENTER THE RACE FOR PRIMARIES

Fourteen Republicans and One Democrat Placed
Their Names With the Secretary of the State on Saturday

Concord, July 9.—Fifteen Republicans and one Democrat, filed their names with the secretary of state yesterday as candidates in the September primary election. Friday, the first day for filing 12 Republicans and three Democrats sent in their declarations, making a total of 30 in two days, of whom 26 are seeking the endorsement of the G. O. P. and four are Democrats.

The list today includes:
Representative Burt S. Dearborn of Laconia for senator from the sixth district. He will oppose W. Rockwell Clough of Allen, the wealthy cork-screw manufacturer who filed on the opening day. Mr. Dearborn was an alternate delegate to the Republican national convention. The district takes in the Winnepesaukee Lake region.

Senator Ezra M. Smith of Peterborough, for re-nomination. Senator Smith represents the 11th district which is in the extreme southwestern corner of the state, comprising 15 towns. If returned with a Republican majority, Senator Smith might be a candidate for president of the upper House.

Representative William J. Carter of Portsmouth for senator from the 24th district. This comprises Portsmouth and six suburbs. Representative Carter was an alternate delegate to the Republican national convention. For four years the 24th district has been represented by Senator John G. Parsons of Portsmouth, a Democrat.

John W. A. Green of Exeter, registrar of deeds for Rockingham County, for re-nomination.
William H. Sleeper of Exeter, for solicitor of Rockingham County in opposition to Solicitor Albert R. Hatch who filed for re-nomination yesterday.

day. Mr. Sleeper was defeated for this nomination in the last primary by Judge Ernest L. Gupill of Portsmouth.

Robert Scott of Exeter, registrar of probate of Rockingham County, for re-nomination.

Horace J. Holden of Colebrook for solicitor of Coos County. The present solicitor, Burritt H. Hinman will soon leave the state as a member of the National Guard and captain of a Berlin company of infantry.

Herbert M. Thyng, of New Hampton for registrar of deeds for Belknap County, for re-nomination.

Leon D. Ripley of Stewartstown, for solicitor of Coos County. He will oppose M. Holden. Mr. Ripley is moderator in his town.

Representative Frank E. Pearson of Laconia, for re-nomination in the 5th ward.

William F. Seaverns of Laconia for re-nomination from the 4th ward.

Senator Edwin H. Shannon of Laconia for representative from the 4th ward. He is the senator whose seat was contested when the last legislature sat.

Samuel J. Gendron of Laconia, for representative from the third ward. Mr. Gendron was a candidate last time in the primary.

Joseph P. Lasset of Fremont for representative.

Leroy A. Glines of Canterbury, for representative.

All these file as Republicans.

The Democrat to file Saturday was Representative John T. Dodge of Laconia who desires re-nomination for a third term from the first ward in his city. Mr. Dodge had been mentioned as a possible candidate for the congressional nomination.

duration of that imported thoroughbred is marvelous.

A typical instance of what he can do was shown in the running of the Carter handicap at Aqueduct on Independence Day. A quarter of a mile from the finish, he seemed hopelessly lost in an eleven horse field. Ahead of him were the speedy High Noon, the great George Smith, Phosphor, the Sprinter, Sand Marsh, Harry Shaw, Trial by Jury, Ormsdale, Gainer, Coquette and Gillies—every one a whirlwind.

Four hundred yards from the finish line and nearly 250 feet in the rear—that was Short Grass' position when he was called upon to loosen the wonderful speed that is in his legs. And how he did go. In a six strides he had passed Gillies and Coquette; in a half dozen more he went past Gainer and High Noon. While the huge crowd thundered its encouragement, Short Grass passing the trailers one by one, swept onward.

A hundred feet from the wire he was something like 30 feet in back of the leading Trial by Jury and the second place Ormsdale who were running neck and neck. It didn't seem possible that Short Grass could cut down any of the lead in so short a distance. But Short Grass came on and taking two jumps to one for each of the others.

But Short Grass was beaten by only half a length.

BOXING NOTES

With a preliminary Bill that bristles with class and a final that is sure to be a hair-raising event, the members of the Armory A. A. are assured of action next Tuesday night. Charlie White will endeavor to meet out to Matt Wells the same sort of a larping that Matt gave him last winter. Members of the club who went to the Hippodrome saw one of the best bouts ever staged in this city, and the strange part of it was the favorite ran second.

It is a question if White can do any better in his next trial. Wells over the short route travels like a house afire, but in a contest of any length things are different.

The preliminary card is that of the postponed show in which Jack Britton and Joe Welling were to have been principals. Johnny Noonan meets Billy Myers; Tony Vadlin clashes with Teddy Murphy, and Harry Ah Chung will try to even things with Jimmy Kenny for the treatment he received at Keany's hands recently.

On July eighteenth Jack Britton meets Johnny Griffiths for twelve rounds.

MANCHESTER LAD DROWNING VICTIM

ARTHUR HOY, AGED 17, UNABLE TO REACH SHORE AFTER CANOE UPSETS

Manchester, July 8.—Arthur Hoy, aged 17, living with his parents at 448 Carter street, McGregorville, lost his life while canoeing on the Merrimack river late Saturday afternoon. The boy had rowed up the river five miles above Amesbury Falls. The canoe was overturned and, being unable to make the shore, presumably because of fright, he was drowned.

TO RAZE "HAUNTED HOUSE" IN ELKHART

Elkhart, Ind., July 10.—The haunted rectory of Elkhart is to be razed. This building, the property of St. John's Episcopal church, is in good condition, but has been unused for years. The strange stories told by many persons who have stayed all night in it have frightened all occupants away. Now, although they do not admit it is haunted, the vestrymen have decided to tear it down.

The last occupant was Rev. W. W. Daup and wife. Mrs. Daup was driven almost to nervous prostration by the stalking of the alleged ghost. So severely shaken was her nervous system that the belief that a ghost really haunted the house became general and no one would occupy it.

Many persons have entered the rectory to remain all night within its bare walls and prove to the populace that the ghost theory was foolish. Some have remained all night and said they heard nothing—others have come out of the house shaken with fright declaring they heard strange noises, that electric lights were turned off and on and that bed clothes mysteriously disappeared.

A spiritualistic medium was once prevailed upon to enter the rectory. The next morning she announced that the ghost was the spirit of a young girl who had committed suicide in the house while her father was rector. Many old residents recalled the suicide and the belief in the ghost grew stronger.

Workmen will examine the walls carefully when they tear the building down to find out if any peculiarity in the construction of the building could have caused strange noises at night.

Portsmouth should have a carnival day and appoint live men to carry it out.

WITH THE SPORTS

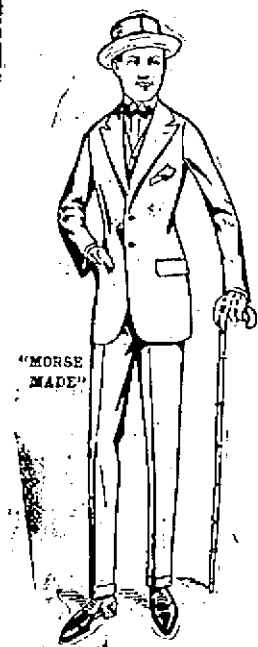

(By Frank G. Menke)

New York, July 9.—Horse owners operating in New York state are being cured gradually of the habit of racing class horses in the cheap selling events. But the treatments are quite expensive. Very often it has cost an owner more money to retain a winning horse than the purse that was won.

Just the other day an owner entered a horse worth at least $1200 in a $500 selling event. That horse outclassed the field and raced home in the lead. The purse amounted to something like $350. For a moment this owner was quite gleeful over the fact he had engineered then he realized his folly.

Other horsemen began bidding for his steed. Up and up went the price. The owner didn't want to part with his horse and so he had to meet each new bid. He finally kept his steed by bidding something like $1200. That meant he had to turn over to the racing association the difference between $100—the entered price—and $200, a loss of $50 against the gain of the $350 purse.

When a horse is bid up and retained by its owner, the owner turns over to the racing association the difference between the entered price and the last bid. The association then divides that money pro rata among the owners of the other horses that ran in the race. Naturally, the owners of the beaten horses always are joyful when a winner is bid up and retained.

Beyond Boston, which is reached from New York by the historic Post Road to New Haven and the shore route through New London and Narragansett Pier to Providence, or by the "air line" route through Danbury, Waterbury, Hartford and Worcester, our round trip through New Hampshire is laid out with the Massachusetts' Capital as the starting point.

Reverse Beach Boulevard is followed through Lynn to historic Salem, over Beverly Hills and through Hamilton and Ipswich, on the Ipswich River, to Newburyport. This place, of great maritime importance in its earlier days, is a pleasant old port, with narrow streets, quite in keeping with its departed seafaring character.

Beyond the Merrimack, the route leads through Salisbury and follows the ocean Boulevard to New Castle, seventy-five miles from Boston, a short run further on leading to Portsmouth, the former capital of New Hampshire.

The route to Dover, the oldest town in the state, crosses the toll bridge between the Piscataqua River and Great Bay and proceeds through undulating country to Rochester. From this point a pleasant side run is made via Farmington to Alton Bay, a beauty-spot at the southern end of Lake Winnepesaukee. The run may be continued south of the lake to the Wetts, which is also passed through on the return portion of our round trip. In the Ossipee Valley the road follows the Salmon Falls River to Milton. Mount Teneriffe is a conspicuous feature on this route, while Cogswell Crown Mountain is seen to the left. Lake Newfound, a small lake, affords impressive views and the country assumes a more hilly character as beautiful Ossipee Lake is approached.

On the left, legend-haunted Cheong, a Mountain lifts its solitary peak, while Silver Lake lies sheltered amid the forest shades of Madison Plains, with Legion Mountain rising majestically in the east. After Conway, the route passes through Intervale to Jackson, 167 miles from Boston and thirty-two miles from Portsmouth, an ideal stopping place for a day or a week. Just beyond North Conway, before Jackson is reached, the road branches to the left for Glen, Bartlett and Benning, and continues thence through famous Crawford Notch to Bretton Woods, the well known resort in the heart of the White Mountains.

Beyond Jackson the road follows the Ellis River, traversing lovely Pinkham Notch from which Glen Falls Falls are approached by a steep, signed pathway. The road to Mount Washington leads to the left at a point twelve miles north of Jackson, and to motorists fond of high altitudes this 6,000 or 7,000 foot climb will appeal. The toll charged for automobiles is five dollars with a charge of forty cents for each passenger.

Following the Peabody River, the road is overshadowed by the Presidential Range; Mount Washington, Mount Clay, Mount Jefferson, the Adams Peaks and Mount Madison, as it circles Pine Mountain toward Gorham. The road ascends picturesque Andrews-cogin Valley to Dixville Notch, thirty-eight miles from Jackson, through some of the finest mountain valley and river scenery in the world.

Dixville Notch is 335 miles from Boston, at the northern extremity of the White Mountains. It is situated in a region of unique beauty and the country round is famous for its fishing and hunting. Westward along the Mohegan River the route passes Kinderhook and Colebrook and then follows the Connecticut River through Columbia, Coos and Stratford, to Groveton, winding amidst lofty hills, of which the more noted are Moose, Horn and Belamy Mountains. The Porey Peaks, over 3,000 feet high, rise conspicuously in the east.

Circling Mount Lyon, the road runs through Northumberland and Coos Junction to Lancaster. Close beneath Mount Prospect and with Mount Star King rising prominently a few miles to the east, the route winds south to Whitefield, fifty-six miles from Dixville Notch and 291 miles from Boston. Whitefield is pleasantly situated at the home 391 Hanover street Tuesday the St. John's River at the foot of day afternoon at 2 o'clock. Friends in Dalton Mountain, and as the route vied.

proceeds via Carroll and Twin Mountain to Bretton Woods of Dalton and Cherry Mountains, the Green and Pilot Mountains and the Franconia Range. To Bretton Woods is but a short run of sixteen miles, through a charming valley that winds among the lower spurs of the surrounding mountains, while Mount Washington's 6,000 feet of altitude dominates the view.

After Bretton Woods, the route traverses the wooded uplands of the Franconia Mountains, passing Mount Lafayette. It threads its way through Franconia Notch and passes Echo Lake on the left, surrounded by towering peaks. Following the Pemigewasset River, we pass Profile Lake, beneath a background of hills, while peering out over the lake, is the "solemn-browed and awful face of of stone," "the old man of the mountain." The flame, another freak of nature, may be visited, though automobiles are not admitted on this road, and visitors must hire a carriage or walk. West of the Pemigewasset Valley, the country becomes more open and the eye is attracted again and again to the north for another look at the ever-changing peaks, with Mount Washington towering them all. Plymouth lies west of the Squam Range and commands splendid views of the mountains, the island dotted waters of Squam Lake and of Lake Winnepesaukee; Mount Belknap is impressive on the southern horizon.

The route runs south through Bridgewater to Ashland and along the shore of Little Squam Lake to Holderness. Here it enters the heart of the lovely lake region and swings south through Meredith to the romantically situated village of Weirs. Some of the finest views of Lake Winnepesaukee are obtainable from this picturesque spot. In earlier times a favorite camping ground of the Winnepesaukee Indians, Concord, located on the Merrimack River is 110 miles from Bretton Woods by way of Lakeport and Lakes Purgus and Opechee; and is an attractive stopping place.

The last lap of the trip follows the valley of the Merrimack through Pembroke to Manchester, the largest city in New Hampshire. Following north through Reed's Ferry and Merrimack, the pleasant city of Nashua is passed, and beyond the Merrimack, Lowell, one of the busiest and most enterprising cities of New England, is reached. Leaving Lowell, the road runs through Billerica and Haverhill to Boston by way of Arlington, Cambridge, and Commonwealth Avenue into Park Square, completing seventy-eight miles from Concord and rounding off a total distance of the whole tour of 165 miles.

Portsmouth, N. H., Monday, July 10, 1916.

An Apparent Exaggeration.

It must be that San Francisco is well supplied with school teachers, for a dispatch from that city is to the effect that many teachers who have gone there in the expectation of securing employment at good pay have been disappointed and are having a desperate time in keeping body and soul together. It is said they have gone from all parts of the country, "lured by the prospect of greater earnings and opportunities, only to see their savings fade into nothing and their hopes and pride turn to shreds until they are eager to accept places as domestics, dishwashers or waitresses."

According to the story there are many cases of this kind. It is said the young women call day after day at the employment bureau pleading for any kind of employment by which they may earn a living, and that there are not places for them, even in the ranks of common labor.

There is an old saying, "Where there is much smoke there must be some fire," and so it may be believed that there have been in San Francisco cases of the kind described, but the story as a whole does not sound reasonable.

There are several reasons for this. In the first place, while there are adventurous individuals, women as well as men, who will pull up stakes and go to some distant part of the country in search of better opportunities without due preparation for exigencies, the great majority of men and women will do nothing of the kind. They either know where they are going and what they are going for, or go with the means to get home in case the vision fades after their arrival. In most cases they do both, which is altogether the better way.

On the whole it is probable that there are not so many suffering teachers in San Francisco as represented by this tale of hardship. Without doubt the story has a basis in fact, but that large numbers of teachers should flock to this California city in a financial condition but one remove from beggary seems incredible, and the chances are that their sufferings, like Mark Twain's death, have been greatly exaggerated.

If the published story shall prevent anyone from rushing heedlessly to a barren field it will serve some good, but just at present there is trouble and excitement enough in this country without any sensation over starving school teachers in San Francisco.

Expert bacteriologists in New York claim that war refugees from Europe are bringing infantile paralysis to this country, and that this accounts for the epidemic in Brooklyn and Manhattan. But how is this claim to be substantiated before the germ of the disease has been isolated, something which the "expert bacteriologists" have not yet succeeded in doing, according to recent reports.

The Episcopal church of the country is making splendid headway toward raising a $5,000,000 pension fund for its aged ministers. The work was begun four months ago and $3,000,000 has already been pledged. This is highly encouraging and without doubt the sum will be completed, as Bishop Lawrence predicts, on or before the first of next March.

One newspaper says that the passage of a bill now before the Russian Duma and its approval by the emperor will mean that Russia "will become forever a prohibition country." Is it not possible in Russia as in other countries to repeal a law if occasion requires? Forever is a long time to be controlled by the act of a single law-making body.

It is proper that every community should do what it can for the comfort of the men who have gone to the front and toward the assistance of such of their families as may need help. And it seems as if this might be done without resort to "tag day" tactics, which some towns are considering.

One New England city recently raised the pay of its laborers to $2.40 a day of eight hours, and now a neighboring city is agitating in favor of $2.50. It is this sort of competition that causes the tax payer to sit up and take notice.

The Mexicans may not be highly civilized, but that they are very human was evidenced by the alacrity with which they seized upon large amounts of gold and silver bullion belonging to Americans who for valid reasons had left the country.

Earl Kitchener of England left an estate of nearly $1,000,000. There is money in the military line, as in any other, when one gets and stays up around the top.

Now that the Fourth is past we can listen to the music of the mowing machine, and a little later to that of the campaign orator.

TWO BURNED BY LIGHTNING

In One of the Severest Thunder Storms for Years, at Bow.

Bow, July 10.—In one of the severest thunder storms in many years on Saturday, lightning struck a pine tree very close to the Baptist church and entered the edifice, presumably through the open doors or windows. At the time there were many children inside rehearsing for children's day concerts. Nearly all of them felt the shock and were affected in various ways. The most severely injured were Harry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Smith who was thrown to the floor and burned on the left side in spots from the elbow to his toes, leaving a bright red mark all the way, and Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Southmarsh was also knocked down and burned on the right side. He was unable to walk for several hours but at a late hour tonight he was resting comfortably. One young lady carried a bunch of keys in her pocket which were picked out and thrown to the floor.

STAR ISLAND

Rev. William L. Lawrence. Some ten miles from Portsmouth, N. H., eastward in the sea, is a group of islands known as the Isles of Shoals. One of these islands, Star Island, is of peculiar interest to us. It will be twenty-one years this summer since Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elliott of Lowell, passing the summer there, conceived the idea that here was a fine place for a summer retreat. In accordance with that idea, which they then set on foot, they proceeded to put into form, the meetings were begun one year later, and for twenty years they have been maintained on Star Island. We celebrate the twentieth anniversary this summer.

For the first eleven years these meetings were the only ones held by Unitarians in that place. Then nine years ago some of us conceived the further idea that here was a place for the help of our Sunday school workers, and we established the Unitarian Summer Sunday school Institute, which has held its meetings regularly for nine years. Three years ago we invited our brethren of the Congregational church to hold meetings there also. They have done so and in the next two months they will celebrate the third anniversary of the founding of the Congregational meetings.

How this idea has grown and what the possibilities of the island are will be seen from this list which I shall now read of the conventions to be held at Star Island this summer:

July 8-21, 15 days, Unitarian summer meetings.

July 22-23, 2 days, dedication of the island.

July 24-26, 3 days, Unitarian Sunday School Institute.

July 30-August 1, 3 days, convention of the Free Religious Association.

August 3-13, 12 days, Congregational Summer Conference.

August 16-22, 7 days, Institute of Religious Education, under the auspices of the Religious Education Association, which is international and interdenominational.

August 25-30, 7 days, a sociological conference.

Thus our original seven or eight days grow this year to a continuous session of 62 days during the months of July and August.

It became apparent to us and more and more apparent through succeeding years, that if these meetings were to be carried successfully or even preserved, we must own Star Island. Accordingly at our meeting last year the movement was launched, and although we are poor folk who go there, in five days we had raised among ourselves $1,400. Organizations were formed by the Unitarian Summer Meetings Association and the Congregational Summer Conference Association and began their work.

The Unitarian committee raised $13,701.37 at an expense of $263.16, making the cost almost exactly $6 per $1,000, all of which was spent for printing, postage and other absolutely necessary expenses. Our Congregational brethren raised $2,270.50 at an expense of $572.92. The result is that there was a gross amount raised of $15,971.87 and a net amount of $15,125.75.

In order to administer this large trust, there was formed by mutual agreement between the bodies co-operating the Star Island Corporation, which is composed of 15 gentlemen. Of these, again by common consent, ten are Unitarians and five Congregationalists. They have formed a board of directors from their own number of whom six are and always will be Unitarians and three Congregationalists. These persons have officially taken possession of the property.

But it is more than a home to us; it is also our school, where high thought is set forth and where we learn more about the truth and the path of the Kingdom of God. We may or may not be able to realize the dream that has been set forth before us as emphatically by Dr. Kibson Lake, when he speaks of the possibility of establishing here a layman's university, where laymen and theologians meet together and talking of the

CURRENT OPINION

United States Interests Are Solely in Peace and Its Future Guarantees.

If it should ever be our privilege to suggest or initiate a movement for peace among the nations now at war I am sure that the people of the United States would wish their government to move along these lines:

First—Such a settlement with regard to their own immediate interests as the belligerents may agree upon.

We have nothing material of any kind to ask for ourselves and are quite aware that we are in no sense or degree parties to the present quarrel.

Our interests are only in peace and its future guarantees.

Second—A universal association of the nations to maintain the inviolate security of the highway of the seas for the common and unhindered use of all the nations of the world and to prevent any war begun after contrary to treaty covenants or without warning and full submission of the causes to the opinion of the world—a virtual guarantee of territorial integrity and political independence.—By President Woodrow Wilson.

greatest things known to man in language that all can understand, will promote a clearness of vision, a breadth of understanding and a firmness of conviction which we all feel that we badly lack. But if we may not realize this ideal, we may do much and believe that we have been doing much for the promotion of a better understanding of the truths which are dear to us and of the methods by which we are to make these truths effective.

I believe also that we may think of our island as more than a home and more than a school. It is, our cathedral. Here we worship. Here the conditions of rock and sea and sky are such as to bring us very near to God. Some will say that it is the morning services they like best. Others find themselves most uplifted by those sunset gatherings upon the west piazza where as the sun goes down we sing and contemplate and pray, that perhaps the most wonderful the candlelight service, where the pilgrims bearing their simple lanterns go to the ancient church and hang their lanterns on the wall, in that silence which has become a ritual, worship together and seem to feel that the God of the sea and the sky of the day and of the night, is very near.

Do you know Star Island? Have you been there? Then you are indeed to be congratulated upon the richness which has come into your lives. Do you know it not? Then I beg of you, delay not, but become acquainted with it. The doors are wide open, the welcome is yours; there is enough of the feast to spare, ten thousand times over. Come and be of us and let us together make this Star Island movement a great beating heart in our Unitarian body.

PEOPLES' OPINION

Editor: A short time ago your paper published a communication signed by Mr. Sugden of the board of public works which gave the new arrangement perfected by the board regarding the water meter under the meter system. I believe, according to Mr. Sugden's statement that there was to be very little difference in the payment for water; some were to pay less, some a little more. Within the past week, water-takers have received notice from the board that the record shown by the meters in two months, would at the end of six months bring the price up to double the amount paid by consumers before the meter system was installed.

Since the installation of the meter system the board of public works admit there has been a great saving in water throughout the city. If this is so, why double the rates?

People are now even using less water than before and are called upon to pay more for the same. Either the meter system is wrong or the board is working in the dark.

"The public has from time to time stood for the rulings of the board but it will not by any means pay for the water as charged under the meter system. For myself, I intend to pay but not before I have been directed to do so by the court."

It is time the citizens took a stand against such methods and if we cannot have different management in the public works department we had better ask the next legislature to do something to bring us relief.

Farmer away. The police had previously received a telephone message from Dr. Cowles that Ladoux was missing and the facts about the attempted kidnapping. Ladoux made no hesitation or denial in relating the facts of the case to the police. It is evident that he was carrying out the plans of others who he is said to have named to the officers.

While at the police headquarters the officers communicated with his sister, Miss Josephine Ladoux, who had planned to come to Portsmouth to visit her brother. She later talked with him and he was released as there was no charge made against him. He left at once for Biddeford.

Ladoux has been at the Cowles sanitarium since June 27 when he was admitted for treatment. He claims that Miss Farmer had no objections to leaving the place and that she was fully aware of all that was to take place. Had he succeeded in getting across the river into Maine it would have been more work for the courts of both states, who have had for several years been called upon by the relatives and guardians of the woman to act on her sanity and the appointment of guardians in New Hampshire and Maine.

She was originally placed in the Cowles sanitarium by the late Edward B. Ginn, a Boston publisher who acted for years as her guardian in this state. At the time of his death Miss Mary S. Sanford of New York was appointed by the court to succeed Mr. Ginn as her guardian.

Her guardian in Maine is George E. Hammond of Ellot, who with relatives of Miss Farmer has from time to time appealed to the courts for the release of the noted woman on the ground that she has been confined at the institution in this city against her will and that her lifelong friends have not been allowed to visit her.

ALLURING SENORITA A BORDER DANGER.

(By E. S. Jacobs, International News Service Correspondent.)

El Paso, July 10.—She has the fascination of the tropics in her smile, and when she sings to a light guitar well, Uncle Sammy had better watch his soldier boys.

To capitulate to a Mexican enemy is quite different from capitulation to a Mexican beauty—especially when that beauty is not adverse to a mild flirtation with the handsome American fighting man.

Alas for several Yankee sweethearts back home, it would seem that the entire detachment of Seventh Infantry on guard duty at the international bridge had capitulated to the charms of Senorita Carmen. Still, there are mitigating circumstances.

"Quo tunc?" the cry rings out. It is the custom of officials' challenge to crossing Mexicans. "What have you?" they ask. The steep greasers unfold their bundle and display its meagre contents.

"A donde va?" follows the challenge of the immigration authorities. "Where are you going?" they demand. "Manana," the Mexican invariably mutters—"I have been sent"—and shuffles along.

The soldiers are there simply as sentries and to prohibit the exportation of arms and ammunition into Juarez across the Rio Grande. All through the long hours of the day—hours that seem like months—they pace to and fro. A broiling sun beats down on them like a ton of hot bricks. The alkali dust seeps into their eyes, ears and windpipes.

But for the visits of Senorita Carmen the soldiers' life at the international bridge would be what Sherman said of war. She comes tripping along the bridge unfailingly each afternoon when the sun's heat begins to lose its strength. In one delicate hand she carries her little guitar. In the other she clasps her flimsy reborn close to her bosom.

There is always a seat in the shade of the immigration office for Senorita Carmen, and there she sits and smiles at the American soldiers.

There is always a seat in the shade of the immigration office for Senorita Carmen, and there she sits and smiles at the American soldiers.

"Plunk, plunk" goes her guitar and her voice blends with the words of the Mexican ditty:

Her song is a proclamation to the effect that the coconuts doesn't want to run, nor do the Villistas, Carrancistas, Obregonistas, nor any other of the Mexican "istas."

For half an hour, she plays and sings to the soldiers; teaches them bits of her language, and, as fair exchange, is taught phrases of theirs. They laugh and have a good time over it. Then the senorita with her little guitar goes back across the river to her own people. Life at the bridge resumes its monotony.

Everlasting gratitude to the Americans is the secret of the girl's visits. Her father was once befriended by an American rancher, and she has never forgotten it. Then too, while she has ensured the hearts of all the detachment, who knows but that her heart in turn has been ensnared by some handsome American private in the Seventh.

CHANGE IN P. O. DEPT.

Division of Salaries and Allowances to Be Known as Div. of P. O. Service.

Consolidation of several departments of the government postal service under one head has been brought about, effective July 1, according to advices received here by John H. Dowd, postmaster.

The clerks previously were under a separate division, known as the division of salaries and allowances, and the carriers were classified in the division of the city delivery.

By the new ruling of the postoffice department at Washington, however, these two divisions have been abolished and the division of postoffice service which has been created will absorb them. It will also embrace the division of miscellaneous transportation which included the screen wagon service and the like.

The division of postoffice service will be under the direct supervision of the first assistant postmaster general.

INDIANA CENTRE OF POLITICAL FIGHT

Indianapolis, Ind., July 10.—"Dog days" will find the political campaign in Indiana in full swing, unless the Mexican situation hangs on to interfere with the plans of both Democratic and Republican party leaders.

Indiana is a big political prize this year. The national conventions of the Republican and Democratic parties have so recognized it and the politicians in Indiana are planning to tell the world about it.

About all the speaking talent in the two parties is being sought for the campaign. If it were not for the fact that many of the speakers desired are tied in Washington by the Mexican situation the campaign would not be under way. But Senator Taggart has informed the Democratic state committee that few speakers can be secured before Congress adjourns and the Republicans are confronted by the same problem.

Two candidates for vice president, Thomas H. Marshall and Charles Warren Fairbanks are from Indiana. They are neighbors and good friends, but their race already has excited rivalry through the state. Then there is the prize of the two U. S. senatorships, on which the eyes of the national leaders are turned, and in addition thirteen congressmen and the state ticket.

Always classed as a doubtful state, but Republican for many years until Thomas H. Marshall entered the governor's office six years ago, the latest political battle in years will be waged here.

The following men subscribed $25 each immediately upon receipt of the major's telegrams:

KISSED ALL BUT SIXTY

Pretty Penn. Girl Embraced
Trainload of Soldier Boys on Way to Front.

Clearfield, Penn., July 10.—As the third section of the troop train carrying the Sixth Pennsylvania to the concentration camp pulled out of the little town Saturday, sixty sturdy soldier boys massed in the rear car and on the platform, gave vent to deep groans of disappointment and gazed enviously at 273 of their comrades, each of whom wore a smile.

Down the track ahead were the first and second sections, each bearing a full load of boys in khaki, and each boy bearing a similar smile. In all there were 971 smiles.

Why?

Ask Miss Mary Halsey, aged 12, the prettiest girl in Clearfield. Miss Halsey herself wore a look of happy exultation, for she had just demonstrated her patriotism by kissing 371—count 'em, 371—of Uncle Sam's boys squarely on the mouth in the period of 2 hours and 30 minutes. This is at the rate of slightly less than 6.48 kisses a minute, and is believed in Clearfield to be a record.

Miss Halsey began only a few minutes after the first section of the train stopped in Clearfield depot. She was still going when the third section pulled out, but had to jump off the rear platform with three score unkind.

THOUGHTS OF A ROOKIE.

For Mexico they say we're bound,
Where sand and alkali surround,
For restless Mexico,
Where cactus and where sage-brush
meet

The glare of the infernal heat,
And where a peck of sand you eat
With every ration—oh!

Where water, I have heard them tell,
For drinking purposes is well,
Until for use, we'll say,
So full of antiseptics that
The medicine falls flat
And doctors scarce know where they're at

For names of all that prey!
If half what old campaigners say
be true, we'll have no holiday
Down in that fertile clime.
Mosquitoes, flies and all the things
That crawl or run or move on wings,
As full of poison as of stings—
Gee! won't we have a time!

AIRSHIP WRECKED AT NASHUA

Farnum Fish, the Aviator, Is Slightly Burned as Machine Turns Turtle.

Nashua, July 10.—Farnum Fish, the aviator, narrowly escaped death, both from his airship which turned turtle and from nine racing motorcycles who were circling the fair grounds track in the 25 miles race, when he attempted to make his first flight on Saturday afternoon at the second annual field day of the Ferdinand Gagnon club.

While the race was in progress Fish started, with his parachute jumper, Joe Schiller, as a passenger for the first airship exhibition of the day. The machine started from the back end of the track at the east end. It ran along the ground the entire length to the west, not rising more than a couple of feet. As it neared the fence at the back west curve it rose about ten feet. The tail hit the inner fence rail. The machine toppled partly over and a propeller hit the fence, being broken. The machine was on the track and the nine motorcycles were tearing around it. But as Jack would have it when the machine turned turtle it fell just over the outside fence, a wreck. Fish was slightly burned on the face and wrist and Schiller had a sprained leg and arm.

BULLETIN ISSUED BY THE NAVY YARD IMPROVEMENT ASSO.

The following bulletin has been issued by the Portsmouth Navy Yard Improvement Association:

New Machine Shop.—An item carrying an appropriation of $300,000.00 for a new machine shop at this yard has been incorporated in the Naval Bill by the senate committee. The Industrial Manager, Naval Constructor L. S. Adams has been active in promoting this proposition and has been assisted in the work by this association.

New Yard Restaurant.—A new yard restaurant is now being fitted up in Building No. 22, which is more centrally located than the old restaurant and when completed (which will be in a few weeks) will enable meals to be served in a shorter time and under more favorable conditions than formerly. Provisions are to be made for all employees (whether purchasing meals or not) to use this room for a recreation place during the noon hour. The association was active in bringing about this improvement.

Furloughs.—Every employee of the yard who has been employed on the yard during recent years must appreciate what little time he has lost through furlough as compared with conditions previous to the last two years. The activity of the committees of the Improvement Association in co-operation with the officials of the yard, assisted in promoting a spirit of interest in manufacturing work which has been the mainstay of the yard during the period when ships are absent.

30 Days Annual Leave.—The Talbot bill providing for 30 days' leave each year for each and every employee at navy yards and naval stations, has been passed by the house and has every chance of becoming a law. The hearings before the naval committee have been received in pamphlet form and can be seen by members at any time and will be discussed at the annual meeting of the association.

Federal Workmen's Compensation Law.—The proposed measure provides for all workmen receiving a permanent disability, such as loss of hand, foot, eye, etc., with a life compensation of a certain percentage of his weekly salary.

Government Employees' Retirement Law.—Whereby all government employees will be retired after twenty years, twenty-five years, and thirty years service on a scale of forty, forty-five and fifty per cent of their yearly salary has been introduced. A provision is also made for permanent disability after five years' service.

A bulletin has been issued by the New York Navy Yard Employees Association and contains the following: "It was only through workmen agitating and getting together that we are now enjoying the benefits of battleship construction in navy yards, the eight-hour law, half holiday on Saturday, etc., so why cannot we be equally successful in a retirement law."

The other navy yards are organized and require our united assistance to endorse the Hamill Pension Bill in conjunction with the National Association of Civil Service Employees. At a meeting in Brooklyn over three thousand employees of the Brooklyn navy yard appeared to endorse the efforts of their organization.

New Naval Construction.—The Naval Bill, now in conference, contains an enormous appropriation for new vessels. Eight of the largest vessels forty coast submarines, and supply and fuel ships are included in the bill. Private yards are filled with orders for many years work. The government must of necessity do much of the work in its own yards. In order that Portsmouth may get its share of new work, it is imperative that the members of this association present a united front and all work together for the common cause. It is not unreasonable to suppose that 3000 men will be employed here when the yard is properly equipped. Now all unite to work for the new improvements and new work to which the yard is entitled. Every other yard will be well organized. Help to make ours a powerful organization.

craft, shall be upheld. He will carefully examine the vessel to substantiate telephone from Baltimore that there are no guns or munitions of war of any sort on the submarine. This was decided on today following a conference between Acting Secretary of State Polk and Acting Secretary of the Treasury Byron E. Newton.

It was agreed that inasmuch as a new international precedence must be established by the decision in this case, the examination would be made by experts from the Navy Department. Until it has been made, it will not be determined whether the cargo on the craft is to be unloaded.

Ryan in his report says that the cargo is valuable dyestuffs and certain drugs manufactured only in Germany used for the treatment of certain diseases, the supply of which has been exhausted for some time.

Both France and Great Britain have formally called to the State Department the presence of the Deutschland in American waters and have asked that her status be determined. Acting Secretary of State Polk said today that the request was entirely a formal one. He announced that the question of the ownership of the submarine probably would be raised by the Embassy. He said that if the complete examination shall determine that the vessel is unarmed and entirely a merchantman she undoubtedly will be so regarded by this government.

POSTAL ZONE PROPOSED FOR SECOND CLASS MATTER

Washington, July 8.—There is evidence of a determination among the leaders of Congress to enact legislation creating a zone system of rate for second-class mail matter. The existing rates, it is declared, are not equitable but discriminate in favor of the big magazines against newspapers which only circulate locally, and the patrons of the first class service.

It seems that for many years representatives in Congress feared tackling this problem because of threats of political annihilation. Now a situation seems to have developed where the newspaper publishers feel they should not be required to pay as much for sending their papers through the mails as do the national magazines. They have their claim on the fact that the average newspaper circulates almost entirely within a radius of two or three hundred miles of its seat of publication while the national magazines are circulated more generally throughout the country.

Situation Aggravated

The fight made in the Senate recently by the magazine publishers against the "Blue Tag" system of the Government shipping various magazines by freight has only helped to aggravate the situation. During the debate at that time several of the members suggested that a zone system of rates should be made applicable to second-class matter.

Recently Representative Randall, of California, a member of the House Postal Committee, introduced a bill proposing the establishment of a zone system of rates for all second-class matter. The bill has created more than the usual amount of interest among members of Congress and its author has received many letters of endorsement from publishers in various parts of the country. The members of the Postal Committee in both the Senate and the House seem to be taking a keen interest in the matter. On the House side it is reported as almost a certainty that the Committee will include a zone rate provision in the next regular postal appropriation bill along the line of the provisions contained in the Randall bill.

Commenting on his bill Mr. Randall today, said: "My bill is designed to remove several gross evils or abuses from which the American people suffer in the administration of the postal affairs of the country, which are:

1. "An annual net loss of more than eighty million dollars is occasioned by the one cent per pound rate on weekly and monthly publications of the magazine class.
2. "One cent drop letter postage in every town and city, and ultimate universal one-cent letter postage cannot be enjoyed by the people until this great loss in the carriage of one class of mail at the expense of those who pay letter postage is stopped. During the calendar year, 1915 the Postoffice department issued 2-cent stamps and 2-cent stamped envelopes to the value of $159,352,250.76. During the same year according to the official estimate of the Postmaster General, its loss exceeded $80,000,000 on the carriage of second class mail at one cent per pound. This is an astonishing revelation. As a matter of fact, one half of the postage paid on every letter bearing a 2-cent stamp went to make up the deficiency caused by the collection of insufficient newspaper and magazine postage.

Daily Newspapers Suffer

3. "Publishers of local newspapers, daily and weekly, suffer enormous losses in advertising revenues by discrimination in postal rates in favor of publications of national character, located many hundred miles from the local field, but enjoying the same postal rate which the local papers pay in their restricted fields.

"The time has come when the postal service must be put on a business basis. Discrimination against the man who buys the 2-cent stamp, and against the publisher of the newspaper in the local field, must cease. The postal rate of one cent per pound which is granted as a virtual subsidy to the national papers of the magazine class has resulted in fabulous fortunes for private interests and to which the postal department is giving a plain contribution of more than eighty million dollars annually.

"To make this more definite in the mind of the public, let me give a startling illustration of the working of this mail subsidy feature as applied to one magazine published in Philadelphia. This is regarded as one of the highest class women's publications in America, and has more than a million subscribers, receiving more than $5,000 per page per issue for the advertising which appears in its columns. The June issue of this magazine contained forty-two pages of advertising for which the publisher received in excess of $210,000. Each copy of that issue weighed one and one-quarter pounds, and the postal department received 1-1/4 cents for delivering each copy, whether the subscriber lived in Maine or California. The total amount received by the government for delivering one million copies of the June issue was $12,500 while the publishers gathered in $210,000 for the advertising.

Commenting on his bill Mr. Randall today, said: "My bill is designed to remove several gross evils or abuses from which the American people suffer in the administration of the postal affairs of the country, which are:

1. "An annual net loss of more than eighty million dollars is occasioned by the one cent per pound rate on weekly and monthly publications of the magazine class.
2. "One cent drop letter postage in ing alone, to say nothing of subscription money.

"The profit of this magazine from one month's transaction with the government amounted to the difference between $12,500 and $210,000 or $197,500.

"On the other hand the government suffered a net loss on the handling of this magazine estimated at 5 cents for each pound, not including the work of delivery by carriers at destination. Therefore the loss to the government on account of the June issue was $62,500, while the publisher's profit was $197,500. During one year's time the profit of this publication, by reason of Uncle Sam's extreme liberality, amounts to $2,370,000, while the government pockets a loss of $750,000 on account of its friendship.

This is the application of our mail subsidy to only one publication. The same abnormal policy is pursued with thousands of like publications, until to day, as has been said, the net loss to postal revenues is in excess of eighty million dollars annually.

Can it be said that these publications would be destroyed by a different and more business-like policy? Here again in this illustration is the proof of the wastefulness of that claim. Out of the net advertising revenues annually of $2,370,000, could not this publication pay its postage bill of $750,000, and still be in a fairly prosperous condition?

Rates Suggested

The bill which I have offered to correct these abuses, namely, to eliminate the losses on second-class, or newspaper and magazine postage, to destroy the present discrimination against the local daily and weekly newspapers, and to make possible at once one-cent drop letter postage and ultimate universal one-cent letter postage, reads as follows:

"Sec. 1. That all newspapers, magazines and other publications regularly admitted to the mails as matter of the second class shall hereafter be subject to the following rates of postage, the zone system now applying to parcel post matter to be adapted also to second class matter:

- "Local, 1st, 2nd and 3rd zone (under 300 miles) 1 cent per pound.
 - "Fourth zone, (300 to 1000) miles 2 cents per pound.
 - "Sixth zone, (1000 to 1400 miles) 3 cents per pound.
 - "Seventh zone, (1400 to 1800 miles) 4 cents per pound.
 - "Eighth zone, (over 1800 miles) 5 cents per pound.
- "Provided, that free-in-county circulation provided by law shall continue as at present; and provided, further, that no discrimination in rates of postage on account of frequency of issue shall be permitted in the city or town where a publication is mailed or otherwise."

CHILDRENS' PARADE AT LITTLE BOARS' HEAD

SHAKESPERIAN CHARACTERS PORTRAYED BY LITTLE PEOPLE

A very pretty affair took place at Little Boars Head Saturday under the direction of Mrs. Harvey Cushing-Mrs. Goodwin and Mrs. Wilbank. The annual parade of the children was this year made a Shakesperian celebration. About 50 children participated each representing one of Shakesper's characters. The march was led by Mr. Woodwilly as Cardinal Wolsey, preceded by a band. At the close of the parade refreshments were served by Mrs. Wilbank.

BOSTON LETTER

Boston, July 10.—Dr. McLaughlin, head of the state department of health has sent out the following suggestion to parents and the public to aid in keeping the infantile paratyphoid plague out of Massachusetts and New England: Keep your children away from any child suffering from an unidentified malady—from any suspicious case. Beware of flies. It is not known that flies carry the disease, but it is better to be on the safe side. If a child in the family is taken ill, isolate the child until you know exactly what the diagnosis is. Summon a physician at once if the child's illness is suspicious. It is well not to permit kissing of infants or small children. Observe the general rule of good hygiene. Don't overload children's stomachs; keep them in good physical condition; prevent gastro-intestinal disturbances.

The new ambulance company being organized at the Commonwealth Avenue is now full, according to Captain Dudley, and all "we now need" said Captain Dudley, "is some sort of conveyance. If some patriotically inclined person will give us some sort of a light motor truck we will be in a position to do rapid service. We are just trusting that good fortune may send along such a vehicle."

Three hundred nobles of the Mystic Shrine are on their way to Buffalo today in fifteen Pullman cars to attend the 43d annual council of the Shrine in Buffalo. This includes Alvaro Temple, Boston; Kora Temple, Lewiston, Me.; Bekatish Temple, of Concord, N. H.; and wives and daughters of the nobles. In the party will be Imperial Potentate J. Putnam Stevens of Rutland, the ruler of the order in America.

Queen Mary of England has once more thanked the Surgical Dressings committee of Boston for its continued help in behalf of the hospitals of the Allies. Lady Lawley, secretary of the Queen Mary's Needlework Guild, writing from St. James' Palace, said: "Your perfectly magnificent contribution of dressings included twenty cases, and have arrived safely, and I am desired by her majesty to express her very grateful thanks to the surgical dressings committee for the noble way in which they are helping the war. Many of your things have gone straight to the hospitals around Verdun, where I know they are in some need of all surgical dressings. Some of your cases were sent to Mesopotamia, and one case was sent to Italy through the Italian embassy. In the past fortnight 119 cases were sent to France and 20 cases to England."

Because City Auditor Charles R. Thurston of Cambridge, as a result of a dispute over the relative value of two clauses in the city charter, has refused to honor vouchers for his salary, Mayor Wendell D. Rockwood of Cambridge has not received a cent of money from the city for his services since January 1, when he came into office. As a consequence the city now owes him six months' salary. Mayor Rockwood entered office under the new form of charter known as plan D and late in February his salary was established by the city council at $5,000 a year. Formerly it was $3,500. Mr. Thurston points to a clause which states specifically that "the mayor's salary shall not be increased during his incumbency," and maintains that one half of $3,500 is all he should receive for his six months pay. No peaceful settlement of the dispute is yet in sight.

$50,000 TO WATCH TRACTORS PERFORM.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 10.—Hundreds of acres will be plowed by tractors of all sizes at the tractor exhibit to be conducted west of the city for a week in August. A half million dollars worth of plows propelled by motive power, as well as other sorts of tractors for farm use, will be displayed. The promoters expect fully 60,000 farmers to witness the demonstrations.

THREE NEW U. S. COINS TO CIRCULATE SOON.

Washington, July 9.—New coins of artistic design in the dime, quarter and half-dollar denominations now are being turned out by the government mints, under an order issued by Secretary McAdoo, authorizing the first change in design in twenty five years.

On the face of the half dollar is a full length Liberty, with a background of the American flag. The reverse side shows an eagle perched on a mountain crag with wings unfolded. The twenty-five cent piece bears a full-length Liberty with shield upbraided, while on the reverse side there is a figure of an eagle in flight. On both the quarter and half dollar is the inscription, "In God We Trust." On the dime is Liberty with a winged cap on the fore side with a design of axe and fasces on the reverse.

HOUSE FIGHTS SENATE OVER FREE SEED GRAFT

Washington, July 9.—Free distribution of garden seeds to the constituents of Senators and Representatives during the past four years has cost the United States government $1,110,933. "There is a possibility that this practice, termed by Senator Kenyon, as nothing short of 'congressional graft' may be abandoned hereafter," as the Senate has just knocked out the free seed distribution clause of the agricultural bill. Senator Kenyon, who led the fight against the amendment, said on the Senate floor:—

"There is no more reason for sending out free seeds than for sending out free clotheings or colic remedies." Congressmen, believing in the supposed political advantage of making gifts of seeds to the wives of farmer constituents, are expected to re-insert the free distribution clause.

ORGANIZE EFFICIENCY POST-OFFICE BUREAU

Washington, July 10.—Postmaster General Burleson has created in the Postoffice Department the new division of "Postoffice Service," charged with injecting great efficiency into the handling of mails and their movement in every city and town in the United States. The new division will direct the work of more than 100,000 employees and supervise the disbursement of $150,000,000 annually. Mr. Burleson predicts that improved mail service will be brought about by the new bureau, and that confusion which has in the past been caused by divided executive authority over postal functions will be eliminated.

HOTELS AND SALOONS PLAN JOINT DRIVE.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 10.—The hotel keepers of Indiana have decided to attempt to strike a bargain with the liquor interests and then have the demands of both presented to the next legislature. "The hotel keepers want the free lunch in saloons abolished. Too many good hotel dinners remain unsold while a gust munches at a free lunch they say. And in order to get the saloon keepers' support to this resolution, they promise to add the liquor dealers in getting the legislature to take off about every restriction there is on the saloon business."

A COINCIDENCE.

George Pennington, for many years a conductor on the Portsmouth electric road, has entered the employ of M. J. Jacques, on Vaughan street. Mr. Pennington was in the employ of the road seventeen years, to a day, and Mr. Jacques was employed by his former employer for a period of eighteen years when he decided to engage in business for himself, which seems a rather singular coincidence.

DRANK A QUART OF WHISKEY A DAY

BROCKTON MAN ESTABLISHES A NEW RECORD.—HAS BEEN FAITHFUL FOR ELEVEN YEARS.

Brockton, July 8.—When Nelson Guyette of 41 Brookside avenue told a story to Judge Warren A. Reed in the police court today Judge Reed believed him and subsequently discharged him on a complaint of illegally transporting liquor. Guyette told a story that made even the police sit up and take notice.

For 11 years, Guyette testified, he has consumed one quart of whiskey per day. In spite of this Guyette appears almost a model of physical manhood. One of the attaches at the Court-house did some figuring during the course of the hearing and this is what he tabulated:

Guyette has consumed 100,375 drinks of whiskey in 11 years. If these drinks were purchased over the bar they would have cost $10,037.50, but at the rate Guyette purchased, at wholesale, 75 cents per quart, he spent but $30,312.50. In spite of this expense, Guyette says he has nearly $400 in the bank and supports himself and daughter.

Guyette was arrested with eight quarts of whiskey on his person. Judge Reed, after finding him not guilty, ordered the eight quarts returned.

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE TO GET TOPLIFF ESTATE

Manchester, N. H., July 8.—Dartmouth College within a few days will receive $200,000 from the estate of the late E. M. Topliff. It was announced today. By the will of Mr. Topliff, who died in 1911, the estate was left in trust to Miss Ellen A. Topliff, a daughter, who was to receive the income during her lifetime.

Miss Topliff died this week and David A. Taggart, an attorney, who was named as trustee, stated today that under provision of Mr. Topliff's will he would turn the principal of the estate over to the Dartmouth authorities.

BELIEVE DEATHS ARE DUE TO A SUICIDE PACT

BODY OF MRS. GOODRICH IS TAKEN FROM CANAL AT MANCHESTER SATURDAY NIGHT

Manchester, July 9.—The finding of another body, that of a woman, in the Amoskeag Canal last night following the finding of the body of Frank Wedick Friday afternoon, lends substance to a supposition that a suicide pact existed which involved two if not three persons.

The body of the woman found had been in the water for several days, making identification difficult, but a comb which she wore in her hair is recognized by Mrs. Leon Goodrich, owner of a lodging house at 55 High street, as that owned by one of her lodgers, Helen Bennett, aged 25.

Miss Bennett and Wedick, whose body was recovered Friday, were seen in company by Mrs. Goodrich Monday afternoon. Tuesday morning a woman's hat and two men's soft hats were found on the canal bank near Dean street by watchman Robert McKinley of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, and it is also reported that two men and a woman were seen on the canal bank early the night before.

This may indicate that there is still another body in the canal, that of the second man, and the owner of the unidentified hat.

Both bodies are bruised about the head, but there is nothing to indicate that these bruises could not have been caused by coming in contact with stones on the canal bottom.

Unless a third body is found the police will make further investigations. Both bodies were turned over to the medical referee, Dr. Maurice Watson.

went to Washington and agreed to make the attempt on certain conditions, which conditions were the following:

1. That every man joining the command, either as a commissioned officer or enlisted man, should agree that while a member of the First Vermont Cavalry he would not use any intoxicating liquors.

2. That the field and staff officers, so far as possible, be regular army officers, preferably from the Cavalry arm of the service, and as many as possible of them graduates of the United States Military Academy at West Point.

3. That at least twelve splendid, clean, fighting, duty sergeants from the regular army be commissioned as second lieutenants and one placed in each of the twelve troops of the regiment.

Those conditions were assented to. The regiment was skeletonized, but in a short time the American troops were withdrawn from Vera Cruz, and the army was not increased.

While in Washington, on May 19, 1914, I was requested again to undertake the raising of the First Vermont Cavalry, was ordered to Northfield, Vt., to take command of the first squadron, 1st Vermont Cavalry, which includes the entire student body of Norwich University, and on the day I reported there for duty every member of the senior class was given his degree.

Col. Glenn, Chief of Staff to Major General Leonard Wood, U. S. Army, commanding the Eastern Department, made the principal address; Col. Joseph T. Dickman, commanding the 2nd U. S. Cavalry, presented my command, in behalf of the Loyal Legion, with a beautiful cavalry regimental standard, and every member of that graduating class who had just received his degree, reported to me for duty in that squadron.

On June 25, 1916, Col. J. C. P. Tillson, commanding the 22nd U. S. Infantry, acting Inspector General, inspected this command and on that day wrote to the Adjutant General a letter which closed as follows:

"The patriotic rally of the students of Norwich University makes me proud to be an American and convinces me that this institution is the one greatest American university.

With very best regards,
Sincerely yours,
J. C. P. TILLSON."

I hold in my hand a letter from Mr. Justice George M. Powers, of the Supreme Court of Vermont, who with his children, visited this camp on Thursday last, and in this letter Mr. Justice Powers says:

"I am proud of your command, and it makes me prouder than ever to be a Vermonter. May all success attend you.

Sincerely yours,
GEORGE M. POWERS."

I also hold in my hand a letter signed Maybelle J. Howe, the wife of the Hon. Harland B. Howe, U. S. District Judge, for the District of Vermont in which she commends in the highest terms your plan to organize "The Mothers of the 1st Vt. Cavalry" and says "I wish I had some sons to join your regiment."

Now, officers and men of the 1st Vermont Cavalry, our work is cut out for us. I will try to do my part. Will you do yours? In order that it may be fully understood what some of my part is I desire to state now that in the event that I learn that any officer in my command since taking his oath to this government, has taken any intoxicating liquor of any kind, even a glass of beer, I shall prefer charges against him for "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman" and the specifications will be that he has failed to keep his pledged word.

If I learn that any enlisted man in this command has taken any intoxicating liquor since he took the oath, I shall immediately give him a dishonorable discharge which will be a record which he never can have effaced.

It is now half past ten; exactly one week ago this moment, I took command of this squadron on this spot. In that week I believe you have found out that I mean what I say and will do just what I tell you I will.

I have had some little experience in fighting troops in the tropics in foreign service, and I discovered, fifteen years ago that boozing and soldiering do not mix well. You can't do both in this command. If you want to soldier, get out and let the rest of us soldier. I stand for fair play. These splendid officers and men have a right, and their families have a right, to be absolutely certain, and each officer and man has a right to feel secure in the assurance that if he ever goes under fire his comrades, his non-commissioned officers, and his officers shall be perfectly sober and in full possession of all their faculties."

DESIGNS ARMORED CAR FOR AMERICAN ARMY

Washington, July 10.—A new type of armored motor car, designed for use by the United States Army, carries a rapid fire gun which shoots from 500 to 600 shots a minute. The car weighs 1,700 pounds and is equipped with an eight-cylinder sixty-horsepower engine. When in actual service the car will be protected by quarter-inch steel. The radiator is protected by closing doors while the car is under fire.

Back of the chauffeur, who is given ample protection under a steel box, is the gunner's seat in a ball-bearing, revolving turret. Another seat is provided in the body of the car for the gunner's assistant whose duty is to revolve the turret at the gunner's orders, and to supply ammunition. The gasoline capacity of the car is sixteen gallons, allowing for a run at high speed of 175 miles. Ordnance officers say that the car will be equipped with a thirty gallon tank, making it possible to run the machine 300 miles without stopping for fuel.

SPEED UP CONGRESS WITH EYE TO CAMPAIGN.

Washington, July 9.—President Wilson is closely watching leaders in both houses of Congress in their efforts to "speed up" legislation within a week or so, with a view to adjourning before September 1. Leaders have informed the president that statesmen generally are becoming restive over the prospect that they may be delayed in getting back home to mend their political fences and a program to expedite business at both ends of the capital probably will be begun.

Several of the leaders today were not inclined to agree with Senator Kern, democratic leader, that an adjournment would be possible by August 20, ten days earlier than was figured upon, unless a plan to hurry the passage of a number of big measures now pending is worked out. The president has told his advisors that he desires the campaign to be launched in earnest by early September.

CHURCH HUMILIATION PRECEDES GLORY

"Weeping May Endure For a Night, but Joy Cometh In the Morning."

Divine Permission of Evil For Six Thousand Years—Reign of Sin Soon to End—Church's Present Experience of Suffering Violence a Preparation For Future Glory—Apostate Systems Claiming Present Right to Rule Not the True Church—Distinction Soon to Be Seen Clearly—Church In Glory to Be Known and Honored.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Sloux City, Iowa, July 9.—Pastor Russell is in our city, in attendance upon the 1. B. S. A. Convention here. Today he gave a very interesting lecture, based upon Matthew 11:12—"The Kingdom of Heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force."

According to the Pastor, not only our Lord Jesus Christ, but every individual member of His Church, has suffered violence in some form during their earthly course. All who are of this class have taken a firm stand for God and His Truth, and have rejected all theories and doctrines which are unscriptural. As a result, they have been opposed, maligned, misrepresented and persecuted, not only by the worldly, but chiefly by those who have a form of godliness while denying the power thereof. This condition will not always obtain, however.

Our earth is the only part of the Universe in rebellion against our Creator, the speaker explained. That rebellion has continued ever since Father Adam disobeyed God's command, and brought upon himself and his posterity a sentence of death—not eternal torment. "That sentence was, 'Dying, thou shalt die.' No matter how much we may have been taught to the contrary. (Genesis 2:17; Romans 6:23; Ezekiel 18:1, 20; etc.) God has permitted sin to take its course during these six thousand years, in order that man's experience with its results shall be a valuable lesson to all Gods intelligent creatures throughout eternity, demonstrating the unwisdom of disobedience to the Divine Law.

But God has also purposed to give the entire human family one full opportunity as individuals to return to harmony with Him. This fact is the essence of the Gospel. (Luke 2:10; Galatians 3:8, 10, 21; Timothy 2:6, 8.) St. Peter declares that this opportunity will be given during "the Times [years] of Restoration." (Acts 3:19, 21.) Other Scriptures show that this will be during the Messianic Kingdom, when Satan shall be bound and when everything will be under Messiah's control for the purpose of eradicating sin, helping mankind up out of their fallen condition back to the image of God and to harmony with Him. —1 Corinthians 15:24-28.

Violent Opposition to the Kingdom.

In due time God sent His Son, the prospective King of earth, into the world to tell mankind that God has mercy on them and wishes to bless them. Although He came to the most favored nation of that time, yet they rejected and crucified Him. Thus violence was done to the Kingdom of Heaven; He Jesus was the rightful King. He gave up His life, permitted it to be taken from Him, knowing this to be the Father's will. Thus He humbled Himself, "even unto the death of the Cross. Wherefore also God hath highly exalted Him."—1 Phil. 2:8-11.

After our Lord ascended on High, the Kingdom continued to suffer violence; for there was a class established who had accepted His terms and were walking in His footsteps. All down the Gospel Age this Church class have suffered with their Lord; and in them, as representatives of the Kingdom, has the Kingdom suffered violence. Of Jesus and His disciples it was said that they were under the power of the Adversary; and so it has been said of God's people ever since. (Matthew 10:23.) The religious people of the Master's day said that He had a devil merely because He did not join in with their leaders, the Pharisees; Jesus stood for God and the Truth, and therefore could not endorse their theories, their doctrines, and could not walk in their ways. As a result, they opposed, maligned and persecuted Him.

There is a wide and radical difference between the world's ideas and the Divine Program. Consequently the Kingdom class have suffered violence throughout the Age, sometimes in one form, sometimes in another. Many good people have had a misconception of things. They have thought that the Kingdom is already here, that it was set up centuries ago. There has been a duplicate Kingdom in existence for over a thousand years. The founders of this duplicate Kingdom thought that they were doing God's will in setting it up; but the Adversary deceived them. Our Lord is not now reigning over the world; and the Church has been suffering violence at the hands of earth's rulers. But the time is at hand when our Lord will take His great power, and set up the true Kingdom.

PROMOTION FOR ADAMS AND WATT

Two Industrial Managers May Get Rank and Pay of Captain.

The last issue of the Army and Navy Register says an effort is being made to place a restriction upon the eligibility of naval officers assigned to duty as industrial managers at navy yards to the extent that such officers must have had a total previous service of at least seven years in the industrial work of navy yards or stations or naval industrial establishments. This will not interfere with any of the officers who are now performing such duties. It also proposes that an officer serving as an industrial manager at any yard, having on his rolls an average per annum of 1000 or more civilian employees for the preceding twelve months, shall, while acting in that capacity, have the rank and emoluments of a captain in the navy. This provision would apply to only two officers at present on this duty—Naval Constructor J. S. Adams at the Portsmouth navy yard and Naval Constructor H. M. Watt at the Norfolk navy yard. It is considered that the service requirement is not an unreasonable one in view of the experience which may properly be expected of an industrial manager; while the rank and pay of a captain in the navy is regarded as reasonable in view of the responsibilities attaching to the billet.
